Design Know How

Graphic design and interior design workshops will be hosted at the University of Central Oklahoma (UCO) for high school juniors and seniors. The purpose of this unique workshop series is to introduce students to the world of design. The participants receive an overview of the graphic design and interior design program offered as degree majors at the university. The coordinator of the design outreach series, Rukmini Ravikumar, developed the level one graphic design course to enlighten students to the various career opportunities that may await them in the future after completing the comprehensive educational program at UCO. Ravikumar is the incoming chair for the department of design. The second level of the graphic design workshop was coordinated by Amy Johnson. Johnson continues the knowledge base with in-depth projects and techniques that were previously touched on in level one. A new introduction to the series is the interior design workshop. The goal for the workshop is the same as in the graphic design program, a quick but intense overview of the university program. Amy Jacobson-Peters coordinated the workshop with the guidance of other interior design faculty and Ravikumar. The series is a one-of-a-kind series offered at the university to prepare students for success. For more information, visit our website at www.ocae.net.
